About 3,000 of the faithful and ardent,

together with a detachment of the Rich-mond Light intantry Blues, saw the Cherubs go up and then come cown while dallying with the frisky Crew of the Mary Jane from the scaport town of Norfolk, at Broad-Street Park yester-

The first game, which begun promptly at 2:30 o'clock, was an easy one for the Cherubs, although the Crew put in their oars frequently and tried to head them

Up to the sixth inning, however, nothing of a sensational nature occurred to mar the serenity with which the Cherubic fleet sailed toward the harbor. At that point a mine that had been laid by the Crew exploded, and raised the Cherubs' battery to the extent of the cherubs' battery to the cherubs' battery to the extent of the cherubs' battery to the cherubs' battery to

That was all.

The mines had been located by the Cherub captain, and the fleet sailed on to victory, amid the cheers and whoops victory, amid the cheers and whoops of the cranks and the Blues' attach-

The score stood 9 to 1 and here is how

For two innings not a thing happened. Then Stocksdale, who was being utilized at first bag in place of Lutenberg, who is up with a had side, injured in Norfolk, picked up the stick. He put it down again in a minute, for Hardesty, out in centre, had his eye on Stocks' fly and ate it. Seybold did better, and cracked the sphere out for two bags, and scored a moment later on Hargy's single.

In the next inning Hess scored. He was the first man up and singled, going down on Shannon's hit and scoring on Leahy's death. Then a lull came over

But the sixth was a run getter. Kain and Hess died. Then Sparks singled and Shannon safed on Weddige's error. Both men scored when Danny Leahy hit for two bags, and Stocksdale took a walk two bags, and Stocksdale took a walk. Scybold came up again with a homer over the fence, bringing two runners in with him, Hargy followed with a three-bagger, but it didn't count, for Dundon died by the hand of Wheelock.

The next inning was also fruitful. Kain hit for two bags and scored on Sparks single and Sparks scored on Leahy's double. That was all but that was

That was all, but that was During these stirring times the visitors were unable to get in more than one run. In the sixth Klusman singled, went to second on a choice, and scored on Wentz's bit.

The second game was fatal to Richmond's interest. Lever went in to pitch and when he appeared upon the dimond he was welcomed back to the fold with great applause. For six innings he was very effective, giving the visitors but one hat. In the seventh, however, they landed on him for three hits, resulting in two runs, and cinching the game that had already been wen. The way the game was lost one. We there was lost was like this:

When the second inning came along Weddige was gien a walk and went to second on a cholee. Berger sacrificed him to third and he scored on Staley's out at first. In the seventh Knox hit for two bare and second on Weddige's sintwo bags and scored on Weddige's single. The latter went down on Wentz's out at first and tallied on Staley's hit. This closed it—and Norfolk had the game.

The Cherubs were really not shut out, although Umpire Kelly said so. In the second inning Hargy scored easy at the plate, there being absolutely no doubt about it to any one save the umpire. He was called out and the play made a double, for Dundon had just died at second. This run may not have changed the result, but it may, also, have had a tendency to instill more ginger in the game. ...

The special car was a luxurious affair, the rear being arranged for observation purposes and the rest divided into compartments for sleeping and for serving meals. It was equipped with porcelain bath tubs and everything to make it as comfortable as a moving house could be.

Annual Regatta of the Virginia Boat

Three Set Events, in Which the Result of Practice is Shown-Humorous Aftermath Much Enjoyed-The Winners and Time.

LARGE CROWD SEES GOOD SPORT

The annual regatta of the Virginia Boat lub took place at 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon, in the presence of a goodly gathering of the lovers of aquatic sports, among which was a liberal sprinkling of the fair sex. The course was five-eights of a mile in ength, extending from York Rock, just opposite the Old Dominion wharves, to the point of Mayo's Island. The starter was Mr. James W. Gordon whose knowledge of and powers in regattas has oftimes been proven in the past. The judge was Mr. Leonard Noel, who occupied a position at the finish aboard the Boat Club's yacht.

THE SET EVENTS.

There were three set events on the cards, two singles and a four-oared gig race, followed by tub, duck and swimrace, followed by tub, duck and swimming contests, which afforded much amusement to those who thronged the piazza of the club-house.

The first event was a pair-cared skull race, the contestants being Messrs, W. B. Claiborne and Leo C. Edmond. The men got off fairly and evenly, and the race was a pretty sight, the sharp prows of the shells cutting the water like the keen edges of knives, and the sunlight keen edges of knives, and the sunlight glistening from the bludes of the oars. The race was won by Mr. Claiborne, fect their team-work. The crews were as follows: Crew No. I-William Wood, No. 1; W. B. Claiborne, No. 2; Hanson Lewis, No. 3; Leo Edmond, stroke; M. Chamberlaia, Crew No. 2-Frank Smith, No. 1; Field Wilbon, No. 2; Dr. R. S. Waldon, No. 3; Woodbridge Edmond, stroke; Mate Wayt, oxswain. The race was a prefty, exciting one. It was captured by the crew of No. 2 in good style. The time was four minutes

AQUATIC EXTRAVAGANZA The decks having been cleared by disposing of the legitimate events, three tubs were launched occupied by Messra Walter Claiborne, Leo Edmond and Waiter Claisorne, Leo Edmond with the name Edmond speedily came to grief through the capsizing of their unseaworthy craft, but Mr. Claiborne's boat salted proudly along on the bosom of the deep, until sunk by the heavy guns of his less fortunate adversaries. He was, however, adjudged the winner by Messra. Leonard Noel and Jefferson Wallace, who were anchored in a gig just out in the off-

A wily gray duck was then turned loose and four vigorous swimmers essayed to capture her. She proved as clusive, however, as Cervera's squadron, doubling and tacking with surprising agility. By the small boys the bird was finally "bottled up," and was captured by Mr. Leo Ed-

Bay dogs, who dive and swim like ot-ters, were with difficulty prevented by that gentleman from taking part in the The sports came to an end with a short swimming contest, which was won by Mr. Hanson B. Lewis, with several

Mr. Leslie Blair's two fine Chesapeake strokes to spare.

Members of the Boat Club and their guests then assembled in the handsome apartment on the upper floor of the club house, where refreshments in abundance

IF YOUR BLOOD IS PURE The race was won by Mr. Chalborne, the time given being six minutes. A single skull race came next being participated in by Messrs. Woodbridge Edmonds and R. C. Walden. It was won by the former in the good time of four minutes and thirty seconds. The event of the regatta, and the last set race was the four-oared sig contest. The work done in this was most creditable, considering the fact that a number of the regular crews belong to the Blues, now in camp at the Exposition Grounds, and they were therefore unable to take part. Those who did row have not had much chance to per-
